

PARENT – SCHOOL CONTRACT (Gr1 & Gr2)
RADIANT INDIAN SCHOOL, SHARJAH
ACADEMIC YEAR (2024-2025)

INTRODUCTION:

A constructive relationship between the school and families is a key to ensure that the students' well-being is at the core of an effective educational experience. It is beneficial for both parties, the schools, and the Parents, if these constructive relationships are based on agreed terms and conditions set out clearly in a contract form.

In addition to this contract, school has effective procedures to address and moderate parental concerns and complaints, while at the same time parents should also be recognized and used as a valuable resource in the educational experience of their children.

To ensure that all parties in this relationship are aware of their duties and responsibilities, families are required to read this document carefully and to approve it only after all queries have been addressed by the school.

1. COMMUNICATION METHODS

Effective communication is essential in building a school-parent partnership which will strengthen the student's learning experience. Communication happens through different means, such as the

- b) All safety rules and behaviour expectations set by the school (based on the recommendation from SPEA) and enforced by personnel, be adhered to by students and parents.

12. PROCEDURE FOR MANAGING AND RESOLVING DISPUTES

- Clarify what the disagreement is. Clarifying involves getting to the heart of the conflict. The goal of this step is to get both sides to agree on what the disagreement is. To do this, we need to discuss what needs are not being met on both sides of the conflict and ensure mutual understanding. During the process, obtain as much information as possible on each side's point of view. Continue to ask questions until we are certain that all parties involved understand the issue.
- Establish a common goal for both parties. In this step of the process, both sides agree on the desired outcome of the conflict. "When people know that they're working towards the same goal, then they're more apt to participate truthfully to make sure that they reach that end goal together That commonality can be as simple as "both sides want to end the conflict."
- Discuss ways to meet the common goal. This involves listening, communicating, and brainstorming together. Continue with both sides working together to discuss ways that they can meet the goal they agreed on in step 2. Keep going until all the options are exhausted.
- Determine the barriers to the common goal. In this step of the process, the two parties acknowledge what has brought them into the conflict and talk about what problems may prevent a resolution. Understanding the possible problems that may be encountered along the way lets you proactively find solutions and have plans in place to handle issues. Define what can and cannot be changed about the situation. For the items that cannot be changed, discuss ways of getting around those roadblocks.
- Agree on the best way to resolve the conflict. Both parties need to conclude on the best resolution. Start by identifying solutions that both sides can live with. Ask both sides and see where there is common ground. Then start to discuss the responsibility each party has in maintaining the solution.
- Acknowledge the agreed upon solution and determine the responsibilities each party has in the resolution. Both sides need to own their responsibility in the resolution of the conflict and express aloud what they have agreed to. After both parties have acknowledged a winwin situation, ask both parties to use phrases such as “I agree to...” and “I acknowledge that I have responsibility for...”
